1. The four-story air force barracks, about 10 x 50 meters in Tiflis (Tbilisi) (41°42'N/44°45'E), Georgian S.S.R., located opposite the artillery barracks, was called a pilot school.
2. The barracks was occupied by an air force unit of about 150 men. The soldiers were about 25 years of age and wore silver-bordered blue epaulets. When they marched out of the barracks they were not armed but carried map cases.
3. A pilot school, an L-shaped building, was located between the Tiflis main station and the Kura River, opposite an officers' school. A small plane on which instruction was given was in the school yard. Large pictures of air-craft could be seen through the windows of the pilot school.
